promises," and "five frauds," and "dissolution of the Union," with characteristic volubility—just as though those miserable old bugbears had vitality enough to be be respectable slave crimes!

I hardly need add that the "natural allies" tried hard to dilute the plain and emphatic language of the resolutions so that they should grate less harshly on the ear of the Slaveocracy, but the attempts were indignantly put down. The declaration of Ohio has gone forth, and though all Slavedom crack, she will bate nothing! The day of Southern dictation is over—the spirit of the Pigrims roused. Not one additional foot of slave soil shall hereafter curse the Union. Our Southern masters may as well understand that now, and be quite.

I would like to say something of the debate, on these resolutions, had I the time and space. Oh, it made the blood course along the veins of freemen, as in the days of Ois and Henry, when the arm obeyed the impulse of the heart! You must permit me signit to mention here the name of Sanutz, A. Benkell, the young member from Harrison County. His speech on this occasion will never be forgotten by those who heard it. May Gibd spare his life, and you will hear him in a wider field and be able to confirm my judgment this day given, this freedom has no faster friend or more elequent defender.

The resolutions will pass the Senate—I hope in a day
